SUPPLEMENT

1. The only regular news agency in Canton, and the largest, is the Central News Agency, which distributes local, provincial, national, and foreign news. As the revenues obtained from newspapers for its services are insufficient for its operations, it has to depend upon the Kuomintang for financial support. The manager, PAN Chih-ching, (潘志清) says that further government appropriations will have to be made if the agency is to continue functioning.
2. Besides the Central News Agency, there are three important official news services: USIS, British Information Service, and the Kwangtung Provincial News. These three agencies give their services free of charge to all local newspapers; only the Kwangtung Provincial News services the Hongkong newspapers.
3. Most of the other news agencies in Canton are about to be forced out of business because local newspapers have begun to depend upon the activities of their own reporters. All of the news agencies are being watched by the city government and the local branch of the Kuomintang, as well as by the former Tai Li agents in Canton.
4. Following is a complete list of news agencies in Canton, exclusive of the four mentioned above:
